

Kellogg May Be U. S. Envoy to Great Britain

Appointment of Minnesota Senator Is Rumored at Washington; New Said To Be Slated for Cabinet

Senatorship for Hays

Shift in Indiana Forecast Complicated by Candidacy of A. J. Beveridge

By Carter Field

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Appointment of Senator Frank E. Kellogg, of Minnesota, as Ambassador to Great Britain is strongly rumored here, his name being more definitely associated with the post than any other name in connection with any diplomatic assignment.

Dispatches from Indianapolis indicating that Senator Harry S. New, of Indiana, is to resign to go in the Harding Cabinet, and that Will H. Hays, in that event, will probably be appointed Senator in his place by Governor-elect McCray, has aroused much interest here in connection with other changes in the Senate about which gossip has been rife.

The Indiana situation is particularly interesting from a political standpoint. It has been realized for some time that Senator Albert J. Beveridge wished to return to the Senate, and it has been known that he was supported in this desire by the most influential morning newspaper in the state, The Indianapolis Star.

Report Causes Surprise

It has been generally accepted that Mr. Beveridge would run against Senator New in the Republican primary two years from now. Hence the surprise here that the report from Indianapolis should suggest the appointment of Senator Hays to the Senate, carrying with it a probable fight two years hence between Beveridge and Hays. It had been thought here that if Mr. Hays wished he could go into the Cabinet, probably as Postmaster General.

Senator New probably can have anything he wants from Mr. Harding. Despite all the talk about the Senatorial oligarchy which "put Harding over" at Chicago, the truth is that almost the only Senator who was sincerely for Harding from the time of the National Committee meeting a year ago until the nomination came was Harry New.

Senator Penrose was known to be willing to accept Lowden—up until the Missouri delegates episode—and to prefer Senator Knox to Senator Johnson. Senator Watson was a dark horse candidate himself. Senator Lodge was originally for Wood.

So it does not surprise Washington that Mr. New is being so seriously discussed for the Cabinet that Indiana gossip has already turned to his successor in the Senate, and the probable fight that will result. The only surprise is that Hays should wish to come to the Senate.

Friends of Senator Kellogg here say that his appointment to the Court of St. James would gratify an ambition of long standing. As Mr. Kellogg is wealthy and fond of social life, he would make an ideal Ambassador at London from the social point of view, and his great ability as a lawyer, which had carried him to national prominence before he entered the Senate, speaks for his qualifications. During the treaty fight Mr. Kellogg was never one of those who attacked the British empire, so it is pointed out there is every reason to believe he would be acceptable to the British Foreign Office.

Opens Fight in Minnesota

Mr. Kellogg retired from the national committee at the Chicago convention, Irving A. Caswell being elected in his place. Governor-elect Jake Press would have the appointment of his successor, and this, like the Indiana case, would probably lead to a renewal of the old fight in Minnesota Republican politics between the factions.

Several other Senators have been mentioned for posts which would cause vacancies in the Senate. Senator

Composition should be appropriate. What is suitable for a millinery announcement obviously is not appropriate for a commercial booklet. When in doubt it is always best to incline to the simple. Caslon or Scotch Roman type is always good. They are suitable for every kind of literature. A good printer can be trusted to select other type faces—but a cheap printer should never be permitted to wander from the conservative. He should never be allowed to mix types, to use rules—and never, never be permitted to use stock ornaments.

Wadsworth, of New York, continues to be mentioned for Secretary of War, on the theory that Mr. Harding will decide against appointing General Leonard Wood. Friends of the New York Senator do not believe that he would wish the appointment, on the theory that he would much prefer to continue in the Senate as chairman of the Military Affairs Committee.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge also has been mentioned for Secretary of State, especially if Elihu Root should refuse the post, but this is generally dismissed for two reasons: first, because Senator Lodge, according to friends who have talked with him since the election, would very much prefer to remain as leader of the Senate and chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee; and, second, because the best opinion continues to be that Mr. Root will accept the place, despite his personal inclination not to take it.

Election Cases Up For Grand Jury Inquiry To-day

Finding of 26 Ballots in Sewer and Other Allegations of Fraud Will Be Sifted by August Panel

Judge John F. McIntyre, in charging the August Grand Jury which is to conduct an investigation into alleged frauds at the general election on November 2, explained to the jurors yesterday that the August panel had been called back because no other grand jury was available, four others being engaged in other investigations.

The jury actively begins its investigation to-day. District Attorney Swann will present evidence at several alleged violations of the election law, one of these being concerned with the finding of twenty-six voted ballots at the entrance to a sewer at Stanton and Orchard streets two days after the election. It is understood that the Attorney General's office also has a number of complaints of violations to present.

John R. Voorhis, president of the Board of Elections, is under subpoena to bring the ballot box and tally sheets from a district in which the twenty-six ballots were found. It is understood he will appear to-day. It is reported that Mrs. Harriot Stanton Blatch, a suffrage leader, and her daughter, Mrs. Morgan Barnett, may be asked to appear as witnesses and tell of irregularities it is alleged they claimed to have witnessed in eleven different election districts in the 17th Assembly District.

It is said Mrs. Barnett asserts she saw twenty-seven Republican ballots mutilated in the 12th Election District of the 17th.

no less than we are by the Bolsheviks, ought to take into consideration the rôle our army played in the Bolshevik defeat before Warsaw.

Appeals for American Aid

M. Krivoschin, Premier in the government of General Wrangel, talking to the correspondents, made an appeal for American aid for the refugees from southern Russia.

"First," said M. Krivoschin, "permit me to express heartfelt gratitude to the American people and the American Red Cross for their charitable work on behalf of the wounded and sick Russian refugees. The military disaster does not mean there is no further necessity to render assistance, and now is more than ever a matter of life and death to the tens of thousands of unfortunate and utterly destitute refugees from the most cruel tyranny the world ever has known."

"General Wrangel's army has been hied white. Although inferior in numbers, it held position after position against the overwhelming weight of the Reds."

The situation became extremely critical when General Wrangel was isolated, especially after the Polish armistice, when he supported the brunt of the Red onslaughts. We expected Perokop to hold out, but the premature frost proved a powerful ally to our enemy. Wrangel's positions were defended by frostbitten, wounded and exhausted soldiers; the dead were piled in heaps, the cruel artillery snatching nearly all the commanders. Despite their high morale, there is a limit to human force, which has now been reached.

Refugees to Unknown Destination

"Crimea, the last strip of Russia where the principles of truth, liberty and freedom prevailed, is being evacuated. The wounded, the children, the women and the sick will be evacuated first, because, if left behind, their fate at the hands of the Bolsheviks would be frightful."

"I am aware that America and the newly elected President are opposed to intervention in European politics. I am sure, however, of their readiness to contribute to philanthropic works not connected with politics."

Thirteen thousand refugees have arrived here from Sebastopol, but because of the lack of accommodations in the city they are still aboard ships moored in the Bosphorus. Several thousand more are due, and it is understood 50,000 have been permitted to take passage from the Crimean city. It was found impossible to provide ships for the entire population of 80,000. Two thousand wounded men also have arrived, and have been distributed between the French and Russian hospitals.

The United States destroyer Fox arrived here Saturday with a party of 50 American Red Cross workers who had been engaged behind General Wrangel's lines.

U. S. Naval Forces to Aid In Evacuating Refugees

From The Tribune's Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Instructions were dispatched to-day by the State Department and the Navy Department to American naval forces in the Mediterranean, Adriatic and the Black Sea to give every assistance in the work of taking out refugees from the Crimea.

Two American cruisers and seven destroyers, with two fuel ships, are now included in the combined commands of Resident Commissioner Rear Admiral Mark A. Bristol at Constantinople, and Rear Admirals Newton A. McCully and Philip Andrews, all of whom have been instructed to cooperate with the British and French naval force in affording asylum for the Russian and other refugees who are seeking safety from the Bolshevik hordes, which have defeated the Russian armies under General Baron Wrangel in South Russia.

The State Department to-day authorized the following statement concerning the action this government is to take in assisting in the evacuation of the refugees: "Upon the receipt of telegraphic information from the department's representatives at Sebastopol, Rear Admiral Newton A. McCully, that the evacuation of the Crimea appeared inevitable and recommending that the government of the United States assist in the evacuation of civilian refugees, arrangements were made by which Admiral Bristol, the American High Commissioner at Constantinople, might employ vessels to assist in the evacuation of refugees from the Crimea."

"In instructing Admiral Bristol to use these vessels instructions were also sent directing him to coordinate and cooperate with the representatives of Great Britain and France in Constantinople who, it is understood, are directing the efforts of their governments in this matter."

"The department has not been informed to what point or points these refugees will be evacuated and is relying on the cooperation of Admiral Bristol with the French and British and Russian authorities to work out details of the evacuation."

"In making public this announcement the department specifically denies its participation in Russian internal strife, its action being based solely on humanitarian grounds, with a view to assisting in the evacuation of large numbers of Russians whose fate, it is believed, would be uncertain and hazardous under such conditions."

Venezelos Is Defeated in Greek Polls

of Demetrios Gounaris, former Premier and opposition leader. All meetings had been forbidden since Friday, but newspapers carried on the fight up till yesterday.

Denies U. S. Favors Ex-King

Opposition journals printed a dispatch they alleged had been sent by King George of England to Queen Sophia, wife of former King Constantine. This purported telegram read: "Dearest cousin: I am glad you will soon return to Greece."

They also printed assertions that public opinion in the United States favored the return of King Constantine to the throne. Newspapers loyal to Premier Venezelos countered with an interview with Edward Cappa, American Minister here, denying these statements. He was quoted as saying that Americans, as well as the Allies, did not favor Constantine.

PARIS, Nov. 15.—The Venezelist ticket in Sunday's Greek elections polled a big majority in Janina, the capital of the Epirus, it was announced by the Greek Legation here to-day. The result might possibly be close in Athens, it was added, but the army vote was strongly on the Venezelist side.

A Havas dispatch from Athens says that the known results confirm the success of the Opposition in the elections. The Opposition claims that it will carry 250 seats. Government papers assert that the government still maintains a small majority in the new chamber.

LONDON, Nov. 15.—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Athens under to-day's date says that the Premier and all the members of his Cabinet except one seem to have failed of election. The government, adds the dispatch, has decided to appeal to a popular vote if the final results are against M. Venezelos.

Corridor Helps Poles Beat German Embargo

Special Cable to The Tribune

Berlin, Nov. 15.—The Poles have adopted a novel method of evading the German regulations prohibiting the export of uniforms, underwear and shoes to Poland for military use.

Polish agents who operate in East Prussia and the rest of Germany are buying these articles and shipping them to one another, but the Polish authorities take possession of the shipments while they are en route through the corridor that divides East Prussia from the rest of Germany.

Such shipments from East Prussia and other parts of Germany never reach their destination. These facts were discussed a few days ago in Berlin by the commission dealing with the questions of German-Polish transportation.

THE STORY OF REVILLON FURS

Smoking
Moose Meat

A moose has just been killed by a director of Revillon Frères. The head and antlers may be seen lying beside the canoe. The guide is smoking the fresh meat which will be a welcome addition to the pork and beans and canned goods which are the usual diet on an inspection tour. In order to preserve the meat as long as possible, the guide is smoking it on a rack which he has built quickly with small trees cut from the bush.
